ROJESTVENSKY THINKS JAPS ARE AFRAID.

Wild Rumors Due to Agitated State of Their Minds.

MOVEMENTS KEPT STILL

Russians Expected to Proceed to Vladivostock Without Hindrance.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—The naval game in the Far East is watched with intense interest, but the admiralty is able to throw but little light on the situation. It gives no confirmation of the Tokio report that Admiral Rojestvensky returned to Hon-Koku Bay. The Russian admiral is keeping his movements and plans secret, not communicating even with the home authorities.

The many wild reports emanating from Tokio are attributed to the agitated state of mind of the Japanese over the result of the coming battle. The story that sailors from the crews of the interned Russian ships at Shanghai are being sent to complete the complement of Rojestvensky's fleet is nonsense, as is the previous story that a large number of mercenaries were shipped at Madagascar.

The Admiralty considers there is no harm now in divulging the fact that Rojestvensky's ships are overmanned, instead of undermanned, and when they left Libau there was still hope that Chilean and Argentine warships could be purchased, and portions of the crews designed for them were carried on board the Russian fleet. Many naval men incline to the opinion that Rojestvensky will pass out of the China Sea into the Pacific through the Ballintang channel, north of the island of Luzon, Philippine Islands, and give Formosa a wide berth, instead of sailing through the 200-mile stretch of the Straits of Formosa, in which the Russians might be subject to a torpedo attack.

CATTLE SOLD

On Account of the Loss of an Asylum Contract.

Mr. Geo. V. Green recently lost a contract to furnish butter and buttermilk to the Western Asylum, by reason of his warfare on the state administration and his persistent and violent abuse of Gov. Beckham and Dr. Board wherever he can get any one to listen to him. The contract was worth to him more than $1,000 a year and had been enjoyed for several years. Mr. Green's fine herd of Jersey cattle is now for sale and it is said that a part of the milk cows have been shipped away. Dr. Board says that while Mr. Green's hostility to the institution had something to do with it, that he had other reasons for canceling the contract.

Mrs. Griffey Dead.

Lafayette, Ky., May 17.—Mrs. Emma Griffey, widow of the late Marcellus Griffey, who died three or four years ago, passed away at this place yesterday afternoon, of consumption, in the 52nd year of her age. Her maiden name was Dye and she had long been a consistent member of the Methodist church. Her funeral services will be conducted to-day by her pastor, Rev. De-moureaux. She leaves one child, a little girl 12 years old.

Mrs. Hill Some Better.

The condition of Mrs. C. H. Hill, who has been very low, at her home on West Nineteenth street, was slightly improved yesterday.

Work on the new City Bank will probably be commenced this week and pushed to a rapid completion.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE HAS MEETING.

Good Cheer of the Members of the Tobacco Association.

CROP MAY GO IN LUMP.

Many of the Leaders In the Movement Were on Hand.

The meeting of the Executive Committee of the Dark Tobacco District Association in this city Tuesday was one of far-reaching importance.

President Charles Fort, of Robertson county, Tenn., presided and Vice President Charles E. Barker, of Christian, Secretary Snadon, Col. F. G. Ewing, chairman of the Executive Committee, and a majority of the chairman of the county organization in the nineteen counties in this dark tobacco belt were present.

The chief feature of the meeting was the report of Chairman Ewing, who returned yesterday from New York, where he spent several weeks in the interest of the tobacco association. While declining to give the result of his trip in detail, the committee expresses itself as jubilant over the outcome, and confident that the fight of the farmers against the Tobacco Trust is practically won.

A committee was appointed to draw up a contract with G. Reuzins, of New York, in the interest of the association and it reported that the entire 1904 crop of the members of the organization is involved in the action.

Chairman Ewing was instructed to forward to all the county chairmen pledges for the 1905 crop, and the signing of these will be a very important step in the fight now being waged.

The Executive Committee claims that 90 per cent. of the 1904 crop is now pledged to the association. The committeemen present stated that the trust, anticipating a movement of this sort, was already offering farmers in some sections $10 all around for their next crop.

J. Edwards, of Clarksville, was appointed general classifier for the association.

A new tobacco market was established at Springfield, Tenn., subject to the rules of the association, with James Couch as salesman. Charges for storage were fixed at $1.75, 1 per cent, and insurance.

There are six or eight prizeing houses in this county and all are busy.

ROPER—HILL.

Former Hopkinsville Man Will Wed in Nashville To-Night.

Mr. James P. Roper, formerly of this city, but now of Nashville, will be married in that city to-night to Miss Amelia Hill. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride-to-be.

Mr. Roper is a son of Mrs. I. F. Roper, of this city, and a brother of Mr. Ellis Roper, a popular member of the fire department. He moved from this city to Nashville about three years ago. His bride-to-be is only 19 years of age, whose father is a Universalist preacher. Mr. Roper is a widower with three children. They will live in Nashville.

Clarksville Office.

Mr. Chas. S. Jarrett has opened an office in Clarksville and will conduct his tobacco brokerage business on both markets. Mr. Jarrett will spend much of his time in Clarksville, the Hopkinsville end of the business being in charge of Mr. Robert C. West in his absence.

Carpets, Rugs, Linoleums.

THE CITY BANK.

CAPITAL - - - - $60,000.
Surplus and Undivided Profits, - $70,000.

The surplus of this bank, every dollar of which has been earned, is larger than that of all other Banks in Christian county combined, and in proportion to capital, ranks among the very first in whole State of Kentucky.

CONCERNING THE WEED

Heavy Receipts of Tobacco and Good Sales Made.

Tobacco has been coming in at a lively rate during the past week, the receipts being the largest probably for any week since the season for delivery commenced. The association warehouses are getting a very large per cent. of the weed and are rapidly filling up.

The sales on the loose floor Tuesday were again large and prices obtained ranged about the same as those quoted in the Kentuckian last week. Loose receipts continue heavy and all of the tobacco finds a ready sale. No fine leaf was offered Tuesday, the sales being made up principally of common to medium grades. Hoghead receipts have also been heavy and the inspectors' report for the week will show them to have been about as large as last week.

It is said that four of the teachers in the public schools will not retain their positions. Three of them can be named, but the name of the fourth has put people to guessing, and some of them assert that she has matrimonial prospects.

CASE CALLED

And Defendant Waived Examination.

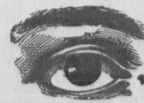

The case of the commonwealth against Frank Sebree, col., charged with shooting with intent to kill Jack Mason, col., at Gracy Sunday, was called for trial in the county court Tuesday. The prisoner waived examination and the matter goes over to the grand jury which meets in June. Judge Fowler fixed Sebree's bond at $100, which was furnished, and he was released from jail.

PEACH CROP

Will Be Heavy and Very Early.

It has been figured that the peach crop of Georgia and Alabama would be much lighter than usual this year, but the latest reports indicate that the crop will be much heavier than for several years. The late frost did not damage the young peaches and in Northern Georgia the largest crop ever produced is expected. The crop in both states will be fully three weeks earlier than usual.

BILKINS' PHILOSOPHY.

These silk-socked boys who do the lab-dash. And hold themselves a notch above the rest. Because they've got an affluent papa. Who through pork corners lines his little test.

They know enough to play on the guitar. Or mandolin and its kin and cavalet. And order vermuth cocktails at the bar. And blow themselves at bridge and bac-carat.

They're luscious nectarines! They ought to star in foreign parts, but here they're sort of lost; They're too good for America, by far. We can't appreciate the price they cost. We think far less of them than that one. We're just plain ignorant—that's our excuse.

I've got a foolish notion that to be a sure-enough and steady-going man, A kid in this dominion of the free Has got to work on the old-fashioned plan.

And painfully shins his persimmon tree And pluck the fruit himself, not sit be-low. Expecting windfalls with an unmarked knee Or wait for the one who climbs may throw.

He may not shine so bright at a pink tea Or lead collie in a style first rate, But you can bet that he's the boy for me. And he's the boy that makes the nation great.

I'll spend my wealth. I'll never be so rash As handpick a kid of mine with cash. —Chicago Daily News.

PETERBY'S FLATS

He Calls On His Tenants

"PETERBY had some spare time and a little uninvested money. 'Put up a flat building,' suggested a friend. 'It will take your time and your money, too.'

Real estate men and contractors nearly drove him frantic, but he persevered. 'It will be easy when the thing's in good running order,' he told himself. 'All I'll have to do is to amble around once a month and pick up my money.'

Finally there came a day when he was to descend upon the six well-recommended families, who did him the honor to dwell in his new building. He drew on a pair of fresh gloves, pocketed a fat receipt book and went forth.

FIRST FLOOR NORTH.

This flat had been bargained for by a dimpled, blue-eyed girl, who had explained that "dear mamma" was an invalid and could not be worried with business. The girl opened the door this morning. She was a vision in a pink silk kimono and she flushed charmingly.

VISION IN A PINK SILK KIMONO.

at the sight of her visitor. She permitted him to touch of her tiny white hand which fluttered adorably in his clasp, all the while she was explaining, in pretty confusion that "dear mamma" was shut in a darkened room with one of her worst headaches and could not possibly be disturbed to sign a check.

Peterby declared that he wouldn't have "dear mamma" disturbed for the world; also that it would be a pleasure to call again for the money. He was rewarded with such a grateful, trusting glance from the blue eyes that he actually stumbled as he started for the flat above.

SECOND FLOOR NORTH.

"For pity's sake, if it isn't the agent, and Mr. James never said a word about the rent! But, then, you can come any time. Anyway, it's just as well you came, for I think you ought to know how things are going on here, so that you can stop them. Not that I intend to complain, but are you sure those people over me are what they should be?"

Peterby blinked, but assured the shrill tenant that the Browns were old friends of his sisters. "Oh, well, then," sighed she, demurely, "I suppose they're the kind you really want. I did hope we'd at last found a decent place where we might stay. We've moved six times in two years, all because the neighbors were impossible. Of all the goings-on up there! People in for supper nearly every Sunday night and callers till they'll wear your hall carpet to tatters. And the rugs they shake over the back porch! Well, I can guess what kind of housekeepers they are! They wear their ferns in the windows, so I can't sun my pillows, and I've been expecting their refrigerator to clog up and ruin my eggings. They take baths after midnight and before breakfast, so that I can't sleep with the hot water running so much. And they have lunches when they come home from the theater. And their cook walks like an elephant."

"Will you please ask them to buy more rugs and put on their bedroom slippers at nine o'clock, so that I may go to bed? You won't care, either, will you, if we move out as soon as we find a better flat?"

THIRD FLOOR NORTH.

"Indeed, sir, the missus ain't to home, but if it be after five, the man that runs this place, yer'll be lucky to get a cent till yer've run out that lady to get under the way she knocks on the stairs plump if my folks open 'em."

tube if I drop the rollin' pin! An' she sint the jan'tur to see if Mrs. Brown wouldn't change her to-home days from Chensdays to Thursdays, as was always spose Thursdays with her mother in Oak Park and wouldn't be bothered with the tramp of callers past her door. The likes of her! Noisy never comes to see her, and she don't know what a the-ater looks like inside, and her dresses—o-oh! If she swept her own porch once a month she'd know that just then it's moved."

FIRST FLOOR SOUTH.

"It's Mr. Peterson—that's the name, isn't it? You've come so early you've found baby in his nightie. But he's a darling anyway, isn't he?"

Peterby, a bachelor of at least 40 summers, suddenly and himself smothered under a wriggling mass of pink cheeks, toes and fingers, indiscriminately tangled in yards of superfluous white flannel and cambric.

"It's lucky you came just now, though, for you can hold the baby while I go out to see what groceries we'll need before the order boy gets here. The cook left last night without a hour's warning—the wretch! You're not afraid of baby, are you? But then, of course, he isn't, is he, old sweetest? It's an honor to hold the precious, isn't it?" Then she darted down the hall.

As any well-regulated infant should, this particular infant protested loudly against having his clothes jammed up under his arms and his head left to wobble unsupported. The unhappy Peterby capered like a distraught camel and clucked like an asthmatic hen until the young mother returned.

"Oh, you want the rent. You'll have to call at Mr. Wiggins' office. It's all I can do to keep my carfare and candy bills straight. Do come again, Mr. Peterkins, when the baby isn't colicky. It's his teeth, I think; but mamma says it's his stomach, and—oh, good-by."

SECOND FLOOR SOUTH.

"Here's your money—in good new bills, to be the greatest as a plump little matron waved the exhausted Peterby into her most comfortable chair. 'You look the way my husband used after he's been collecting—he's a real estate man, you remember. I suppose you've heard all about the Browns' suppers and the janitor's insolence, and now the Wiggins baby howls from pure ill humor, and you didn't get your rent from the first floor north, did you? How did I know? Why, the mother there has been boasting that she'd be collecting, instead of paying, rent in this building before long. How? Why, you poor, unsophisticated bachelor! Haven't you had that dimpled doll baby of a daughter literally hurled at your head? Isn't your tender heart wrung with her helplessness—all the business to look after, in addition to having an invalid mother on her pretty, weak hands? So young and lovely, too! You don't mean to say that you haven't suspected? Well, you're warned now. Good morning!'"

THIRD FLOOR SOUTH.

"No, sir, Mr. Smith isn't in. She never is. But she left the rent, only she said I wasn't to pay a cent of it till I had the receipt in my own hands. She said you might be all right, but she didn't want to run no risk. Yes, this looks right. If it isn't I s'pose Mr. Smith can get the law on you for cheating. If you're going down to the basement I wish you'd tell that good-for-nothing janitor not to let the other girls sneak my laundry tubs till I get there. The way they clutter up them driers—"

In the vestibule the janitor, his once fresh jumpers greasy and frayed, pounced on the weary Peterby.

"If things ain't looked into a little here, sir, I'll have to report conditions to my union. That last coal is just so much black mush and—"

"Bill!" Interrupted Peterby, in a voice awful in its earnestness. "I've stood everything this morning, because I was dealing with the money, but if you open your mouth I'll drop you down the basement stairs. Inside an hour this building goes into the hands of an agent. Save kicks for him."—Chicago Daily News.

Real Consideration.

Mrs. Blank, coming suddenly into the hallway about ten o'clock one evening, discovered Bridget on her knees with her eye to the keyhole of the drawing-room door.

"Why, Bridget, what are you about?" she exclaimed, indignantly. "Don't you know my daughter has company?"

"Oh, that's just it, mum!" was the somewhat reproachful reply. "I just wanted to make sure I'd better knock before goin' in—it's time to be lookin' after the fire."—N. Y. Times

Peasants in Africa.

The peanut is one of the chief cultivated plants of German East Africa, where it has been prized for its relative freedom from diseases. A mysterious malady, characterized by reddish brown spots, has now appeared, and is rapidly killing off the peanut plants of the region. A similar disease affects plants of other locations without proving fatal. The cause is believed to be some unknown parasitic organism. In the southern regions has not yet been found on roots, leaves or flowers.

Japanese Women.

Even the women in Japan have a power of self-restraint that must count for good in the nation in the long run. It is said that they are communities of silent women, precluded over by a matron whose instructions are implicitly obeyed. They are said, yet they hold their peace, no matter what the occasion may tempt, and observe a strict rule of silence. No wonder, then, that a nation with such remarkable women has become a first-class power. —Chicago Chronicle.

CRUDE OIL.

Money is made by keeping a barrel of Crude Oil on hand and using it on your hogs, and feed that you give them. It will cause your hogs to grow and prevent cholera and other diseases. If your horses have scratches, colic, flesh-cuts or sprains, Crude Oil is the cheapest and best thing you can use. If your hen-house has mites in it saturate it with Crude Oil and you will soon be rid of them. If you have fires to build Crude Oil is the best and cheapest kindling you can get. If your barn has fleas in it, use Crude Oil and you will soon have no fleas. For posts saturated with this oil before setting will last twice as long. To give some idea as to the beneficial results its use among hogs produces, I will say that in the years of 1897-8 I fed and handled about two thousand hogs in a lot of 12 acres situated on a hill and containing a pond and spring, and when needed I would empty a barrel of oil in the pond, and the hogs would immediately rush into it and shortly afterwards and off, looking like different hogs. I never lost a solitary hog out of the whole number from any kind of disease. Price of Oil.—Per barrel $5; or five barrels for $12.50. f. o. b. cars. Send check with order and it will receive prompt attention.

NIGHT WITH AN OUTLAW.

A party of specialists composed of boatmen, mechanics, a pilot and a newspaper correspondent was attempting to take the steam launch Major Powell down the canyon of the Green and Colorado rivers in Utah to the cataracts of the latter in order to determine the navigability of about 200 miles of the canyon.

The boat had worked many miles down the canyon since the walls were entered. It was nearing night, says Lute Johnson, in the Denver newspaper, and it was necessary to tie up some one of the timbered bottoms that formed ages ago originally as sandbars in bends of the circuitous stream. The pilot had been down in a row-boat a few weeks before and knew something of the lay of the country. To the others it was a constant uncertainty of what was coming next. The bends in the river, confined as it is in narrow, precipitous walls, shut off all view beyond the width of the river ahead of the prow of the boat.

"We may find somebody at the bottom that lies just around this bend," the pilot called back to the other members of the crew. "I guess it will be all right, though," he added. There was a mystery in his words for which we were not prepared. The bottom came in view, apparently one of about 200 acres in extent, and covered with a luxuriant growth of grass, timbered with cottonwoods and scrub black oak, its edge fringed with willows, its backing a solid precipice 2,000 feet high.

The whistle on the launch broke into a screech that echoed down those canyon walls in a most terrifying way. In response a series of rifleshots fired in rapid succession came from a point in the willow fringe, but only a whiff of smoke indicated the location of the firer. There had been a slight movement of the willows.

"He's still here, all right," called the pilot, in subdued voice. "Lay down your guns and keep your eyes peeled, but don't do anything rash. It will come out all right." His words called for an explanation.

"It's Phil Foote," the pilot explained. "I saw him here when I was down before, but promised to say nothing about him being here, even to you fellows. He is suspicious of us—is expecting officers to come to take him, and although I told him his party was coming he is evidently afraid that it is a trick to catch him."

This added zest to our trip. We had come expecting dangers of rapids and whirlpools, but there had been no suspicion of a human element to be met. We had not figured on confronting a man prepared to fight for his life and accepting us as possible enemies.

The boat proceeded around the crescent-shaped face of the bottom to the lower end, where a landing was to be made. The whistle was tooting at intervals and we were doing our best to act the part of visitors on purely social intent.

We made the landing, but still the firer of the first welcoming shots failed to appear. We busied ourselves making the boat safe, expecting Foote to become convinced that we were friendly and to come down to greet us, as by this time we were all rather curious to meet the outlaw. But he could not feel secure. In the party were some western men with that rough and ready go of the frontiersman who has grown up with a gun at his side and knows how to use it. One in particular, we learned afterward, had been picked up by Foote, in his capacity of the party from his shelter of the willows, as a man who would be a formidable antagonist, providing he had come, as the outlaw suspected, to effect a capture.

It happened that this man was the very kind of one who could have been chosen to go upon such a capturing expedition, and the fact that Foote had singled him out as a dangerous comer to his hiding place showed how well he was able to judge character.

The pilot advised us to leave our guns on the boat and let it be seen that we were all unarmed, wait there and he would go and explain to Foote. He was gone fully half an hour and said afterward that when he came upon him Foote held him covered with a rifle until the pilot partially laughed him out of his suspicions and urged him to join our party. The pilot came back alone, but after another wait of a few minutes the willows parted a few feet away and Foote emerged. He carried his rifle cocked and resting across his left arm, while his right hand held the weapon in position for instant use, the trigger being ready for action. There was a smile on the face of the outlaw, but it was one open to double interpretation. It said: "I am here to meet you either as friend or foe."

On sight of him we of the Powell crew threw up our hands in playful submission and called to him that we were his prisoners. Having left all guns on the boat, all being appeared in rough shirts and trousers that precluded the secreting of weapons, we busied ourselves with the boat while Foote sat down upon the bank, rifle across knees, and watched us for a time, gradually joining in the conversation and accepting us as what we actually were—explorers with no design upon his freedom.

Camaraderie between men in the wilds comes easily. We were soon on good terms with the outlaw and he invited us to his cabin, laid down his own gun and busied himself as a host.

Some six months previously Phil Foote and a woman, while the opening of the elegant new hotel at the mountain spa was in progress, had robbed the guests of the Colorado hotel at Glenwood Springs of the jewels and purses they had left behind in their rooms while engaged in the festivities in the ballroom. They had escaped into Utah with their booty, and, after realizing on the gems, Phil, in true outlaw form, had proceeded to lose the spoils at a gaming table in Salt Lake City.

But as his last dollar passed into the coffers of the faro dealer Phil drew two guns, covered the dealer and demanded his money and all else in sight. In western parlance, "he made a gun play for the bank roll and got away with it." He escaped from the gambling house, fled from Salt Lake to the Green River station, and then to the Green Western railroad, and was stopping at the rail road eating house at that point when the United States marshal of the then territory of Utah came upon him with two deputies and surrounded him in his room in the hotel.

Foote resisted arrest, fired upon the officers, wounded the marshal and, in a rain of bullets, escaped. The second-story window of his room, ran under fire to the Green river, seized a row-boat and put off down stream. He made his escape by the river to a point some 60 miles away and went into camp on this bottom. He, like all outlaws, knew the wild country, and in choosing the bottom on which to make his camp had picked out the one from which there is escape from the canyon walls for the 250 miles between the mouth of the San Rafael and Hite crossing on the Colorado. A blind, narrow, almost indistinguishable foot trail had been lined by game up the canyon wall from the river bottom to the headlands, 2,000 feet above, as a passage to and from water and the feeding grounds, and so formed the only trail in that distance by which one might escape from the canyon.

Here Foote built him a cabin in the shelter of the willows and the timber of the bottom. He had made an occasional foraging trip to ranches far above and meagerly outfitted himself with cooking paraphernalia to the extent of broken parts of a stove to build a fire, a skillet and tin cup. For bedding he had some skins and a blanket or two. He managed to live off the country, killing an occasional deer or mountain sheep that found its way to the bottom or catching a fish from the river now and then. We had our cooking outfit and supplies. A trip to the boat furnished coffee, sugar, canned milk and vegetables. Foote had some venison, so we turned in and helped to get up something of a feast. Foote enjoyed it, for his food supply was extremely low. A new marshal had just been appointed in Utah largely on the promise that he would clear the territory of outlaws, and Foote had not ventured from hiding for weeks. It was this new marshal that he suspected one of our party of being and of coming under cover of an exploration to trap him.

The writer was familiar with the news and the men of the west. He knew many men that Foote knew and of many incidents in which the outlaw had figured; he knew friends Foote made in his pre-criminal days—friends made when the then outlaw was the chief peace officer of a Colorado mining camp, and a good one, too. There was soon a running exchange of reminiscences between us. Foote began to talk of discoveries he had made and incidents that had brought him into the newspapers. He was particularly proud of his discovery and exploration of a natural cave in the Glenwood section. It ended by Foote bringing to light a scrapbook containing among others a large number of clippings of newspaper accounts of his exploits and the robbery of the Colorado hotel.

Foote pointed these out with something of pride; his face flushed once when he called attention to some reference to the woman Dollie, made in them, but there was evidence of pride in the exploit and the notoriety it brought. How proud he was of the record could be judged by the fact that he had brought the scrapbook into the wilderness with him at no small sacrifice.

One does not usually consider an outlaw as a patron of the press clippings bureau.

We all slept in the Foote cabin that night, spreading our blankets on the dirt floor. It was the first night for a week that we of the Powell had slept under a roof and we enjoyed the novelty. Foote had been hungry for company of mankind, and, after the suspicion were off, was pleased to have us there. Next morning he helped us with some repairs on the boat, taking good care all the time we did not spring any trick on him when leaving time came, but outwardly displaying the most jovial spirit when submitting to the camera.

We were three weeks in the canyon and on the return trip again slept in the Foote cabin. It was tacitly understood that when we reached the outside we were to respect the secret of the outlaw. Not a word of his presence did one of us utter. The honor of the wilds, of the woods, is its own. The world not of it knows it not. We had broken the bread of an outlaw; if the law wanted him it was its business, not ours. To us he had been a good fellow, a comrade.

It was months later when the new marshal of Utah learned of the hiding place of Foote and started down the canyon after him. Foote had word of the coming, and, hastily building a raft, launched himself upon the river that takes its toll in lives. There was something of a chase, but the men of the law did not catch him. He was taken in the chances that the outlaw took in shooting the cataract, facing death every moment of the flight on his crude bark to safety. Foote got through the cataract in some way—those gods to whom the outlaw and the foolhardy look for protection did not fail him. Others might go to death on the rocks, however wisely their craft had been designed to combat the terrific dashes of hot waters in their wild, ferocious race through those canyons, but the outlaw got through unscathed.

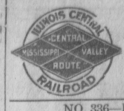

He reached Arizona and soon afterward joined in an attempt of some designing mining promoters to jump the rich mine of another. Foote, with others of his kind, had been hired to eject the owners of the property and capture it. The owners were entrenched in the mine buildings and resisted the raid. Foote was shot and mortally wounded. When the officers reached the scene of disturbance they found Foote lying on the ground where he had fallen, a bullet wound through his body, life fast ebbing.

"Tell my brother I was shot in the back," he gasped, with his last breath, and so dying sought to pass on a feud.

The Southwest.

A Grand Country for Homeseekers and Investors.

Excursion Rates Twice a Month.

Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas offer the greatest inducements for persons desiring to own their homes. Cheap land, producing almost anything that can be grown anywhere, mild climate, good schools, good water, healthful surroundings, and a growing country are some of the advantages.

Unexcelled for raising fruits and vegetables for early markets. Land that can be bought for $5 to $10 per acre can be grown anywhere, and $200 per acre in orchard and truck farm.

First and third Tuesdays of each month we sell homeseekers' tickets from Memphis and Cairo at one fare plus $2 for the round trip.

April 4th and 18th special low round trip rates—less than one way fare—$15 and less from Memphis and Cairo to points in Texas. Low rates in proportion from points East of Memphis and Cairo.

PRIMARY CALLED FOR
SAT. JULY 8

To Be Held In Both Counties
In Absence of Agreement.

ENTRIES CLOSE JUNE 1.

Much Dissatisfaction In Hopkins Over Being Dragged Into The Contest.

The senatorial district committee met at Madisonville at 7 p. m. Tuesday with Lee Gibson, of Hopkins, and James West, of Christian, present. The committee organized with Lee Gibson chairman and James West secretary.

The chairman stated that the committee had agreed at a previous meeting to call a primary election in one or both counties. Under a recent rule the primary must be held in the entire district, except by mutual agreement it may be confined to one county.

Chas. M. Meacham and Joseph E.
Moseley, the two candidates from Christian, were present. Mr. Meacham stated that he preferred to have the contest settled in Christian county, as only local issues were involved, and the nominees on the Hopkins county ticket and other party leaders had without exception insisted that Christian settle the matter without creating a contest in Hopkins. He called upon Mr. Mose-ley to agree to let Christian settle the contest, but Mr. Moseley refused to enter into the agreement and the business of the committee was considerably interfered with by his spokesman, Mr. Ashby Edmunds, who insisted upon doing most of the talking until quieted by a suggestion of an executive session. The responsibility of bringing Hopkins county into the contest was thus placed upon Mr. Moseley and the date was quickly agreed upon and Mr. Gibson was allowed to go to a show at the opera house and will prepare the official call in a day or two.

The primary will be held on the second Saturday in July, the 8th of the month. The entries will be closed June 1st and the expenses were apportioned at $300 to each candidate. The officers of election are to be appointed by June 30th.
In the event either candidate fails to enter, the remaining one is to be nominated without a primary, and should neither enter the contest the committee is empowered to make a nomination.

Please Report.

it is the duty of the parents or guardian of such children to report to me immediately their names and the date of birth and I will add them to the list of district from which they were omitted. Please attend to this at once as my report must be forwarded to the State Superinten-

The first of the series of three games with Vincennes, on the local diamond, was played Tuesday afternoon and was won by Hopkinsville by the close score of 2 to 1. The batteries were: For Hopkinsville,
Alexander and Schan; for Vincennes, Lord and Farney. It was one of the prettiest games ever played on the local diamond, and a large crowd witnessed the contest, which was exciting from start to finish. Neither team was able to score until the last half of the fourth inning, when Neal, who plays left field for the local, sent the ball over left field fence, thus scoring a home run. In the fifth inning both sides were retired without scoring. Vincennes, in the sixth, succeeded in getting one man across the plate. This tied the score and the interest became more intense. The seventh and eighth innings resulted as did the first three, neither team getting a run.
In the first half of the ninth Vincennes failed to score, and it began to look as if the fans would get a good premium on their money, but when Hopkinsville came to the bat the matter was soon settled.
With McAndrews' single, a stolen base and Schan's hit, the former crossed the platter and the victory was won. Alexander did magnificent work in the box and his support was excellent.

The second game of the series was played yesterday, and the third is scheduled for this afternoon.
Tomorrow the Princeton team will arrive here for a series of games.

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

Some Tributes to This Gifted Son of the South.

Following are some distinguished tributes to Mr. John Temple Graves, who will lecture at the Tabernacle next Saturday night, May 20:

Star Course, Boston—Geo. A. Foxcroft, Mgr.—"Mr. Graves' lecture at Tremont Temple was simply magnificent. He will be a leading figure in next year's 'Star Course'."

Unity Course, Cincinnati—A. W. Whippley, Mgr.—"Mr. Graves gave us a glorious lecture. I engaged him on the spot for the next Unity Course."

Rocky Mountain Lyceum Bureau (J. M. Dickey, Mgr.)—"John Temple Graves has left a trail of glory in the Great West. His visit and his lecture here is remembered as an inspiration. He is indeed a statesman and an orator."

Keokuk (Ia.) Daily Constitution—"The Student of oratory should study John Temple Graves, as the student of art studies John Ruskin."

CONTEST IS ON

For Question "Who Will Be May Queen?"

Who will be the "Queen of the May" is the question now in the minds of all, and is approaching decision by the waging contest which started Monday night and which is to last until June 2. Mr. Cloyd said yesterday, "I was indeed surprised when I opened the ballot boxes to find that hundreds of votes had already been cast, and a number of young ladies whose names appear are wearing smiles, expressing their gratitude for their many votes and with hopes of winning one of the beautiful prizes."

The contest promises to be one of the hottest and largest in the history of the city. Watch for the bulletins which will be published daily after to-day, the 12th. Votes sold at 1c each at fourteen of the principal stores in the city.

CHAT OFF THE BAT.

Cairo defeated Princeton in the third game at Cairo Monday. The score was 6 to 0. Princeton won two-out of the series at that place.

At Paducah Monday the Indians shut out Vincennes, the score being 2 to 0.

Hopkinsville lost Monday's game at Henderson, by the score of 4 to 2. This gave the Hens two of the three games played by the local team at Henderson. Hopkinsville got seven hits and Henderson 4. Henderson made only two errors and Hopkinsville one.

Henderson shut out Princeton on the latter's grounds Tuesday. The score was 9 to 0.

The Egyptians lost to Paducah in the game at Cairo Tuesday. The score was 5 to 2.

NOAH W. COOPER

Will Lecture on "Back to Eden."

Noah Webster Cooper, who will lecture on "Back to Eden" at the Methodist church next Tuesday night, May 23, possesses a degree of capacity and power to please and inform rarely equaled. He is a man of splendid information and readiness to tell it in most pleasing fashion, with the grace and graciousness of a practical orator.

Read what others say of him: Mr. Cooper's lecture on "Satan's Sophistry" is full of wit and wisdom, and was delivered with such force and spirit as to receive rapt attention.—Nashville American.

The speech of Hon. Noah W. Cooper is a masterpiece of forensic oratory, and abounds with pretty thoughts and words. Each paragraph is a peroration.—The Times.

Noah W. Cooper is well known in this city as a brilliant attorney, and a faithful church worker.—Christian Advocate (Nashville, Tenn.).

VAN AMBURG COMING.

An Old Show With New Features.

Many of us have visited the Van Amburg Shows in years past and recollect with pleasure the splendid performance this show always gave the public. It is one of the shows that gives all it advertises and its motto—"Please the People and they will Please You"—is the cornerstone upon which the great success of the Van Amburg Show is built. Starting more than forty years ago with a small wagon show, to-day it travels all over the country in its own magnificent cars by special trains. The improvement on the old-time performance is just as great and every act given in its big tent is of a high order and strictly up to date. Elephants, camels and a large collection of trained animals and ponies are to be seen in the grand free street parade on the morning of the day of exhibition.

Van Amburg's show will exhibit in Hopkinsville on Monday, May 29, two performances, afternoon and evening.

Examination This Week.

The first examination of white applicants for certificates to teach in the county schools will be held at the Virginia street school building on Friday and Saturday, May 19 and 20, beginning at 8:30 o'clock a. m. The examination for colored applicants will be held at the Second street school building on Friday and Saturday, May 26 and 27, beginning at the same hour.

Coffman's Slayer Goes Free.

Madisonville, May 16.—Paul Campbell, who shot and killed Will Coffman near Slaughter's two weeks ago in a quarrel over an old pistol was given his freedom, the grand jury failing to return an indictment against him on account of lack of evidence. Campbell is only nineteen years of age.

Son Lost Mother.

"Consumption runs in our family, and through it I lost my mother," writes E. B. Reid, of Harmony, Mo. "For the past five years, however, on the slightest sign of a cough or cold, I have taken Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, which has saved me from serious lung trouble." His mother's death was a sad loss for Mr. Reid, but he learned that lung trouble must not be neglected, and how to cure it. Quickest relief and cure for coughs and colds. Price 50c and $1; guaranteed at R. C. Hardwick's drug store. Trial bottle free.

MANY NEW BUILDINGS

Now Under Construction In Hopkinsville.

Dalton Bros. new building, corner of Seventh and Virginia streets, when completed will be quite an addition to that part of the city. The walls are up to the beginning of the second story, and have been for two or three weeks. Work had to be stopped for want of pine joints, which are to come from the South.

The foundation for the new Y. M. C. A. building will be completed this week and the contractors for the other parts of the building will begin work in a short time.

Work on the new L. & N. freight depot is being pushed rapidly. The foundation has been completed and water pipes are being put in and other preliminaries are being attended to, preparatory to the rapid erection of a beautiful and commodious freight building, complete in every respect.

Work has been begun on Dr. F. P. Thomas' new residence on South Main street. The lot is one of the prettiest in that popular residence section of the city and the elegant new home which Dr. Thomas will erect upon it will cost considerably over $5,000, and will be a handsome ornament to "popular South Main."

The foundation work of the new Seventh street school building is about completed and the Forbes Manufacturing Company expect to put the brickmasons to work as soon as possible. This handsome new building is to be completed by the opening of the fall term.

The cost of the above named buildings will approximate nearly $80,000, but they are only a small part of the improvements to be made in this city this year. Among others will be the erection of the Imperial Tobacco Company's and the American Stauff Company's factories, and also the Hopkinsville Canning Company's factory, which is nearing completion and will begin operation in a short while.

In order to do all this and make other improvements, brickmasons, carpenters and day laborers sufficient to meet the demand for their services can hardly be obtained. We have been told that everyone available has been given employment and still more are needed. Some of our State exchanges have started the story that "Hopkinsville is in the middle of a big boom." We want to correct this statement. We are not on a "boom," in the general application of that word, it is nothing but a continuation of that strong and healthy growth that "the Pearl of the Pennyridge" has enjoyed for the past fifteen or more years. Probably no city in Kentucky is to-day so busy as this, the population is constantly on the increase, and we are "getting there" from every point of view.

Man's Unreasonableness

is often as great as woman's, but Thos. S. Austin, Mgr. of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife for female trouble. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was so sick she could hardly leave her bed, and five [?] physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters she was perfectly cured and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by R. C. Hardwick, druggist; price 50c.

Children On the Qui Vive.

Examinations are going on in the educational institutions of the city, and if you want to learn something without going to an encyclopedia all you have to do is to ask some of the young people in the high school who expect to graduate.

BARNES BRIEFS.

Condition of Crops, Fruit, Etc., in That Section.

Barnes, Ky., May 15.—Corn planting is about over, except the late patches, which will not be planted until next month.

Wheat is looking well, and if the rust does not interfere, there will be a very large yield.

Miss Winifred Barnes, of near Kelly, visited our community last week.

Miss Goley Fruit of near Antioch, was a recent guest of Elbert Barnes' family.

Mr. L. B. King is the first to plant tobacco in this section. He has set about four acres.

Farmers of this section are very busy preparing tobacco land. Plants are plentiful and if good seasons for setting prevail over an average crop will be put out.

Corn that was planted early came up well and is growing nicely. Oats look well and the prospects are good for a fine crop.

In places there are plenty of apples, peaches, plums and pears. Peaches are falling badly, but many of the trees are loaded with them and unless they are thinned out in some way they are bound to be small.

Miss Maude Rogers, of Hopkins county, is visiting friends and relatives near here.

Mrs. Minnie Foster and children, of South Christian, visited Mrs. Ida Simons last week. SENRAB.

CAN'T MAKE A MISTAKE.

All Hopkinsville People Have to Do Is to Follow Their Neighbor's Advice.

Our readers have no excuse for going astray. The way is almost hedged with guide-posts in Hopkinsville. They are on every highway and byway. "He who runs may read." Investigate this example.

C. B. Davis, of the firm of Eades & Davis, proprietors of the coal yard on Seventh street and the L. & N. R. R. and who lives at 402 East Seventh street, says: "I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and so highly recommended by persons who had used them that I went to Thomas & Trahern's drug store, procured a box and tried them. I had suffered for a long time with a heavy pain across the small of my back, sharp and acute at times. When I caught cold it always settled in my back and there followed a weakness of the kidneys which was exasperating especially at night. I tried various remedies but none of them gave anything like as satisfactory results as I obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. I am pleased to say that they brought me great relief. I have recommended the pills and will continue to do so to all my friends and acquaintances."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

A Good Time to Travel.

There is to be a five million dollar exposition at Portland, June 1 to October 31, commemorating the Lewis & Clark expedition of 1805. In Denver the Epworth League is to have an international convention, July 5 to 9, and the Grand Army of the Republic a national encampment September 4 to 7.

Railroad men who have studied the situation freely predict that it will be the greatest summer in history for western travel. In another column we publish the Burlington Route's advance bulletin of excursion rates, and it will be noted that some of them are the lowest ever made. Western lines (particularly those in Colorado and on the Pacific coast) have announced a corresponding reduction, and planned a great many special low rate excursions through the mountains. Even the steamship companies have taken up the excursion idea and reduced rates for trips to points near and far—as far, indeed, as Alaska and the Orient. This certainly is a good summer for saint and sinner to travel. To be able to visit the Northwest, now promising to become one of the greatest sections of the future, at little cost, is a real joy, and no less appreciated are the reduced rates and special service for trips to such popular places as Colorado, California, the Yellowstone Park and the Black Hills of South Dakota.

Those desiring life insurance will find it to their interest to investigate the plans and record of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, N. Y. No stockholders. All profits divided among policy holders. It is conspicuous for economical management, liberality of its policy contract, fair dealing with its members and large annual dividends to reduce cost of your insurance.
